Globe Theatre in London to mark 400 years of King James Bible

In 2011 the Theatre will host a cover-to-cover reading of the text of this great National Treasure. It has been said that it will be a rare opportunity to 'experience one of the most significant pieces of world literature in its entirety'. The readings will happen between Palm Sunday and Easter Monday and are estimated to take 69 hours.

A similar event to this will take place in Sherborne Abbey and elsewhere. BBC Radio 4 will devote a Sunday for readings from the King James version and Royal Mail, after numerous requests, has been persuaded to produce commemorative stamps for the occasion.
